Why a gender/income inclusive approach is critical for future of public transport and mobility in Bengaluru, examines IISc study

GENDERED MOVEMENT

'Women more likely to use public transport than men'

I Melvin Mathew

According to a study conducted by researchers at the Indian Institute of Science on gender-inclusive mobility, women were more likely to make a shift to public transport.

Women preferred to travel by metro over their male counterparts, the study showed. Researchers found that developing policies encompassing all gender-income groups could help accommodate gender-specific transport habits.

The research was conducted using a preference survey conducted in 2020, and 7,190 data points on 19 variables — age, gender, income, alternative mode of transport, travel time, walking time, interchange time, travel costs using different modes of transport and so on.

Furthermore, the researchers calculated the impact on the variables across 13 policy bundles. Some bundles had individual governing tools and some had two or more governing tools.

For example, increasing network

Massive Plastic Seizure

Palike confiscates 21,837 kg of banned plastic in 21,905 cases, generates Rs 60.8 lakh in fines

The Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike (BBMP) seized around 22,000 kg of single-use plastic (SUP) just over the last three months. The amount has been seized after the central government announced a complete ban on single-use plastic from July 1.

Between July and October, the Palike confiscated around 21,837 kg of the banned plastic items from 21,905 cases, generating Rs 60.8 lakh in fine.

As per the official data on plastic seizures, this is the largest catch over the last three years. Between September 2019 and June 2022, the civic body seized only around 15,000 kg of single-use plastic and took action against 7,296 violators, making the seizures over the last three months the biggest haul in the last three years.

“It is an ongoing process; we are seizing single-use plastic daily after the ban was enforced from July 1. We are focusing on the manufacturers rather than petty shops using the banned items,” said Harish Kumar K, special commissioner, solid waste management, BBMP.

Helping pourakarmikas break menstrual taboos

... as part of Circular Waste Solutions Project, B'luru's pourakarmikas are being given menstrual cups that are a better alternative to cloth and pads

Saumyangi Yadav

TWEETS @BangaloreMIRROR

The pourakarmikas in Bengaluru are being given menstrual cups free of cost in order to promote safe and sustainable menstrual products among the civic workers. The initiative is a part of the Circular Waste Solutions (CWS) Project undertaken by Saahas, a non-government organisation working in the field of waste management.

Dr Shanthi Tummala, the Project Consultant at Saahas and a sustainability expert, said, "The pourakarmikas work on the streets from the morning till 2 pm every day. They often complain about rashes caused by sanitary napkins, etc. So, under the CWS project, we provided them with menstrual cups along with the help of BBMP... This is also to reduce landfill waste caused by the sanitary pads."

Dr Tummala added that though most of the pourakarmikas were using sanitary pads, some were still using cloth during their menstruation.

"This is not an easy transformation for them, of course. However, slowly after more awareness and conversation with other women, others also showed a willingness to switch to cups and so far, we have received positive response from the civic workers," she added.

So far, the NGO has distributed 97 menstrual cups in Bengaluru through awareness campaigns in different parts of the city like Begur, Bommanahalli, Bilekahalli, and Mangammampalya. In the coming sessions at Puttenahalli, Jaraganahalli, and Arekere in the Bommanahalli constituency, the NGO is aiming to provide 100 more cups.

The CWS project is a part of the Nationally Appropriate Mitigation Actions (NAMA Facility) under the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC) in collaboration with GIZ India. The aim of the project is to engage the people towards promoting source-segregation and low carbon impact.

Nethra, BBMP Assistant Executive Engineer (Solid Waste Management), Bommanahalli, told Bangalore Mirror that the pourakarmikas have been giving positive feedback for the cups so far.

"Earlier they would feel hesitant about using cups but we are encouraging them with the help of these campaigns and we have received a good response from the pourakarmikas," she said.

million menstruating women who use disposable sanitary products. This adds up to about 7 million sanitary products in landfills every year. Disposable menstruation products are also said to contain harmful chemicals that may lead to irritation and infections in the short term and lifestyle disorders and cervical cancer in the long term.

Dr Meenakshi Bharath, gynaecologist, and a sustainable menstruation advocate, explained that these cups are made of medical-grade silicon so it collects the menstrual blood without changing it. Moreover, the holding capacity of the cup is three times that of a sanitary pad.

A menstrual cup is also an economical option as compared to sanitary napkins. The average price of a cup ranges from Rs 350 - Rs 1,000 which lasts for about 10 years. On the other hand, disposable pads cost Rs 165 each month on average, amounting to roughly Rs 2,000 each year.

"The cost is minimal; the comfort is maximum and the trash is nil. So, it's a no rash, no trash, no cash alternative for women," added Dr Bharath.

No more space extension constraints for schools

The State Government in a recent order has clarified that the extension of space for Classes 9 and 10 on the same premises required by school management will be considered as a continuation of education facilities under the Karnataka Educational Institutions rule of 1995. The order has brought relief to many schools that have been trying to get the extension in favour of students.

As per the order, if the management is already running a primary school, that is, from Class 1 to Class 8 or from Class 6 to Class 8 in the same premise, it should submit an application for registration and recognition of Classes 9 and Class 10 in the said premise. Extension of Class 9 and Class 10 on the same premise will be considered as an upgradation or continuation of education.

According to D Shashi Kumar, secretary, Association of Management of Primary and Secondary Schools of Karnataka, it is a welcome move.

"Until now, if school management applied for an extension, the department treated the application as a new school establishment and the extension was considered a separate entity. The management had to fulfill many criteria. This had made the process a financial burden to many," said Kumar.

One of the rules that the management had to fulfill for extension is the availability of half an acre of land area within city limits.

"There were other infrastructural requirements such as classrooms, laboratory and staff training, etc, which proved to be very cumbersome," said MN Natesh Kumar, principal of Gurukul International School.

However, with this order, the extension will be considered natural growth. This will mean minimal infrastructure requirements and a much lower fixed deposit amount charged for such extensions.

"An arbitrary amount was also charged as a fixed deposit with the extension application. For the past two to three years, a fixed deposit of Rs three lakh was required. Many schools could not fulfill these criteria. However, with the fresh order, schools that meet the infrastructure facilities as per the Right to Education rule can apply for an extension as well," said Kumar.

New measures to decongest Hebbal flyover in trial phase; police personnel are reporting on time to man traffic, according to deputy police commissioner

The new Deputy Commissioner of Police, Traffic, North Division, Sachin Ghorpade, has implemented changes in the movement of vehicles on the Hebbal flyover to reduce congestion. Although the implementation measures are still in the trial phase, Ghorpade says that the traffic police have been successful in reducing overall travel time on the flyover since the past few days.

He told Bangalore Mirror that three important factors were kept in mind to ensure easy traffic movement.

"Traffic that was coming from service roads used to merge with the traffic of the main road. This would lead to heavy vehicle movement on the flyover. So, in order to tackle the issue, we have stopped the crisscross of traffic. We made sure that wherever there was merging, it was closed. We directed the main road traffic to go directly on the flyover. The service road traffic, on the other hand, was directed to go below the flyover to Hebbal signal. This has reduced the congestion on the flyover," he said.

He also said that now the traffic police reach the spot early in the morning to monitor the area.

"We have also made sure that all our men are there on time. Earlier, they used to come a little late, but now, they are supposed to be there by 7:30 in the morning. The inspector should be there by 8am, the ACP should be there by 8:30am, and I am also present there by 8:30 am," he informed.

The DCP has also banned the movement of light goods vehicles on the flyover from 8:30 am to 10:30 am.

"The movement of heavy goods vehicles is banned across Bengaluru from 7 am to 11 am, but we also did it for light goods. Initially, all these delivery companies were a bit reluctant and questioned the move. However, after a meeting about the matter, they all agreed to follow the rules. This step was taken to benefit the office going people. We want people to move first and then goods," said Sachin.

He added that the measures are still in their 'trial and error' phase, and if they work efficiently, they might be introduced to other parts of the division.

On the other hand, workers from the Congress party and members of Resident Welfare Associations of Hebbal staged a protest on Monday asking for widening of the flyover.

The protestors pointed out that the widening of the flyover was approved in 2016 but the project was never implemented.

Pricey 'road to future'

Eighteen years after introducing pre-cast magic box technology to construct quick-fix grade separators, the Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike (BBMP) is now conceptualising quick-fix roads. However, the quick-fix construction will come at a cost – about 15 to 25 per cent more than the conventional white topping.

BBMP, in association with a private company, is experimenting with rapid roads in Indiranagar. Unlike the regular white topped roads, which would take weeks to complete, these roads are 'promised' to be fixed in a day or two. Although the idea sounds good, the agency is now toying with the additional cost. BBMP Chief Commissioner Tushar Giri Nath said, "We have taken up the new technology of quick fixing of roads. However, the project cost is likely to be escalated by 15 to 25 per cent. The costs involve transportation of slabs from the factory to the

Currently, it is estimated that a kilometre of black topped road costs anywhere between Rs 75 lakh to Rs 1 crore and a kilometre of white topped road, Rs 7.5 crore. The rapid road cost may be 25 per cent more than the white topped road. However, Nath said that the new

"White topped roads take longer to construct. If road laying takes more than the required time, it defeats the purpose of laying a road. As this is the first-of-its-kind of experiment in the country, we hope this model will be a success."

A senior BBMP engineer explained that the concrete slabs will be constructed at the factory site. These pre-cast slabs will be five feet wide and 20 feet long. Around 200 metres of the road could be laid in a day and traffic can be allowed within 24 hours.

Officials say that there could be similarities with the pre-cast magic box technology. Until magic box technology was introduced, concretisation would take place on the spot and would require a lot of time. However, when the magic box was introduced, precast elements constructed at factories were brought to the site and fixed. Due to the pre-cast concretisation, a lot of time was saved. Similarly, precast slabs from the factory will be brought for fixing. Now, the white topped road is blocked for concretisation, followed by curing. The process takes weeks, and as the city experiences more traffic, blocking of key junctions could make things worse.

Bangalore Mirror Bureau
mybangaloremirror

TWEETS @BangaloreMIRROR

Milk prices are set to become dearer from this Thursday as the Karnataka Milk Federation (KMF) has raised prices by Rs 2. KMF announced that one litre of toned milk that cost Rs 37 earlier will cost Rs 39.

Homogenised toned milk will cost Rs 40; homogenised cow milk Rs 44; special milk Rs 45; Shubam milk Rs 45; homogenised standardised milk

Rs 46; Samruddhi milk Rs 50; Santrupti milk Rs 52; double toned milk Rs 38 and curd will cost Rs 47.

Last week, KMF had proposed to hike prices of dairy products by Rs 3 per litre. But, Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai intervened and asked the KMF to revise the orders so as to not burden customers and farmers.

Meanwhile, farmers had protested to demand a rise in prices. Bommai asked KMF to keep both the customers and farmers in mind.

During the board meeting on Wednesday, the KMF decided to hike the prices by Rs 2 across all its products. A KMF official told Bangalore Mirror that the price of milk and curd has been raised to help dairy farmers of Karnataka. The extra amount will directly go to the farmers.

According to PC Rao, President of Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike (BBMP) Hotels Association, rise in both milk and gas prices will burden the hotel industry. However, as of now hoteliers will not hike prices.

KMF said that the prices will be effective from Thursday though the packets will continue to have the previous pricing as the packaging has been printed earlier.

However, customers say this will pinch their pockets. "When the CM intervened, we thought there won't be any revision or it may be a hike of Re 1 as the curd prices were revised earlier due to inclusion of GST," said Sandesh Kumar, a resident of Basavanagudi.

Sowmya R, a resident of Kammanahalli, wondered about the price rise in the middle of the week. "We buy prepaid tokens from a shop to buy milk once a month. It would have been nicer if the prices were increased from December 1 instead of the end of the month."

Raids at rowdy sheeters' homes; 30 arrested

The Central Crime Branch officers raided the houses of 86 rowdy sheeters and arrested 30 on Tuesday. A team led by five ACPs and 30 inspectors conducted the raids.

"After the rowdy sheeters were brought to the CCB office, CCB ACP Dharmendra interrogated them. They have also been warned that if found involved in criminal activities, they will have to face punishment," said a police officer.

Houses of notorious rowdy sheeters such as Cycle Ravi and Wilson Garden Naga were also raided. However, both had already escaped.

CCB Joint Commissioner Sharanappa said some rowdy sheeters were planning to create trouble during the BBMP elections.

"Some people are preparing to create chaos for the BBMP elections and some are collecting money for elections. The raid was carried out for the sake of elections and for the society. During the raid, some people fled the spot. The people who are arrested will be interrogated. We are investigating the income of the rowdies and their activities," said Sharanappa.

Robber shot at

Police shot at a robber during the raid, as he is said to have attacked the police while trying to escape.

Yogananda, a robber, is said to have attacked the cops with hollow bricks at Danojipalya Road in Nelamangala.

Yogananda has 18 registered cases against him. After he tried to escape from the police and started attacking the police officials with bricks, he was shot in the leg. Police say they fired in the air as a warning before shooting at him.

In the hustle, constable Hanumantha Hipparagi sustained injuries. After the attack, Nelamangala Town police inspector Shashidhar opened fire on the spot. Ahna Prakash

Dipping mercury levels and exposure to allergens is sending many in Bengaluru on sneezing spree

TWEETS @sridharVMIRROR

Are you repeatedly sneezing and suffering from a blocked nose? Then blame it on the city's weather. Of late, doctors have received a number of patients visiting them with complaints of sneezing and blocked nose.

Dr Rohit Udaya Prasad, Consultant-ENT & Cochlear Implant Surgery at Aster RV Hospital told Bangalore Mirror that cases of blocked nose and sneezing have shot up. Doctors are seeing this trend especially in children more than adults.

"The rise in cases can be attributed to seasonal flu and a sudden drop in temperature. The onset of winter in Bengaluru definitely brings in its fair share of ear nose throat (ENT)-related illnesses. Unlike northern Indian cities, smog is not much of a menace here, thanks to the greenery," he said.

Doctors say that they are receiving a lot of cases related to people suffering from allergies.

A 30-year-old man was suffering from severe nasal allergies and he couldn't figure out what really triggered it. He did not have any exposure to dust, pollen, cold air, cold or oily feeds.

Doctors informed that the patient was staying in a locked room, unattended for many days and the walls had mold. Many small cockroaches were seen at night with eggs all around the kitchen and living area. The man also had the habit of smoking in closed doors which was the main stimulation for allergies.

"Every day on an average, we see about 20 patients with allergic rhinitis or seasonal allergies, which result in symptoms similar to the common cold. Runny nose, itchy eyes, congestion, repeated headaches, sneezing, and sinus pressure are a few of these symptoms," said Dr Girish Anand MS, Consultant- ENT Surgery at Aster CMI Hospital.

"However, allergic rhinitis, unlike the common cold, isn't caused by a virus. It results from an allergic reaction to an indoor or outdoor chemical that the body misinterprets as hazardous (allergen)," he explained.

He added that histamine, a naturally occurring substance that helps the body to defend itself against allergens, is released when a person's body comes in contact with an allergen. Pollen, dust mites and pet dander are the typical allergens that can cause these symptoms.

Recently, the doctors came across a 27-year-old woman who was exposed to the strong smell of the toilet cleaner and developed some nasal allergies and cough on exposure to it.

In another instance, a 35-year-old man who was exposed to the pesticide spray in his apartment complex developed severe sneezing and nasal allergies which is a result of the histamine release.

According to Dr Anand, a person's allergens will determine the best home cures. People can consider using an air conditioner or keeping their home environment warmer rather than opening their windows if they suffer from seasonal or pollen allergies.

"If at all possible, incorporate an allergy-specific filter. You can manage your indoor allergens by using a dehumidifier. Wash your linens in hot water if you have a dust mite allergy," he said.

Light rains to continue

Meanwhile, light to moderate rain is likely to fall over Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike (BBMP) area. Some places are expected to receive isolated rainfall. The maximum and minimum temperatures are likely to be around 24 and 19 degree Celsius, respectively. Rainfall occurred at many places in south interior Karnataka, a few places in coastal Karnataka and isolated places in north interior Karnataka.

What children want

Child Rights Parliament's charter of demands includes better nutrition, usable toilets

I Y Maheswara Reddy
c-y.reddy@timesgroup.com

TWEETS @BangaloreMIRROR

The state-level Child Rights Parliament organised by the Karnataka Child Rights Observatory (KCRO) and UNICEF successfully concluded in Bengaluru recently. It involved action-oriented discussions between children from across the state, duty bearers and government officials.

The children presented a charter of demands prepared by summarising a two-month-long campaign after consultations involving other children across districts, taluks, and villages. They discussed and listed burning issues pertaining to survival, protection, development, and participation rights of all children. They also drew attention to the need for a child-friendly hospital system, protection against use of narcotics, and usable toilets at schools and public places.

They felt that the nutritional levels of children from the anganwadi level to the high school level have to be improved urgently. They appreciated that first information reports (FIRs) are being filed against child sexual abusers under POCSO, but felt helpless due to delayed judicial processes.

Additionally, they reported coming across several child labour and child marriage cases in the post covid period and requested the government to take preventive steps. They requested for arranging child-friendly and protective school transportation systems. The children also drew attention towards the dilapidated condition of schools and anganwadi centres and demanded immediate repair or new constructions.

Vinutha from Kalaburagi said that she appreciated the government's efforts for providing the Child Right Grama Sabha a forum for children to express, opine, and make their demands known. "We request the government to provide such a system for urban children too through Urban Ward Child Rights Sabha," said Vinutha.

Responding to the charter of demands, Mary Priyanka Francis, Commissioner, RDPR, said that the government would direct all the CEOs of the zilla panchayats to take the responsibility of following up on the issues raised.

Jayanagar MLA Sowmya Reddy said the Child Rights Parliament was a great idea. "I will arrange for the Child Rights Ward Sabha in Jayanagar Constituency to facilitate the understanding of the situation of children and also guide action plans to realise them," she said.

Narendra Babu, Member, Karnataka State Legislators Forum for Child Rights said that if all the legislators take note of the situation of children in their constituencies, work with local organisations, and find solutions for the problems of children with the concerned departments, child rights would be achieved soon.

The Plastic Waste Management rule was amended in 2021 by the central government. The Central Pollution Control Board issued fresh guidelines in February 2022 to ban SUP from July 1.

Starting July 1, as many as 19 Single Use Plastic (SUP) items were banned. As per the rule, anyone caught using, selling, manufacturing, distributing, importing or stocking these products will be penalised.

The items include earbuds with plastic sticks, plastic flags, candy sticks, ice cream sticks, thermocol for decoration, plastic plates, cups, glasses, cutlery such as forks, spoons, knives, straws, trays, wrapping or packaging films around sweet boxes, invitation cards, cigarette packets, PVC banners less than 100 micron and stirrers.

According to experts, while the BBMP is playing its part by seizing the banned products, on the other hand, the Karnataka State Pollution Control Board (KSPCB) is turning out to be the weak link in ensuring better enforcement of the rule.

"The Palike should get a pat on its back if it has seized so much of banned products and cracked the whip on defaulters. However, the Karnataka State Pollution Control Board is busy with the blame game. KSPCB is the implementing agency when it comes to taking steps such as blocking the entry points of banned products into the state or Bengaluru city and seizing pieces of equipment for manufacturing these products. However, the board seems to be on the back foot. The rule can be enforced holistically only if KSPCB steps in," said V Ramprasad, solid waste management expert.

Experts BM spoke to stressed that Palike should focus on setting up plastic waste processing units to get rid of tonnes of plastic waste generated daily.

"The civic body should look at multiple processing units under the PPP model across the city. The units should be responsible for the collection, sorting, shredding, melting and pelletising of the plastic waste to obtain granules. This will also help meet the demand for granules that are used in road construction projects," said another city-based expert.

Public transport, gender & income

coverage of public transport could lead to a 10% reduction in walking time toward boarding a bus and inter-time between two successive buses along a route. Encouraging park and ride could lead to a reduction in the overall cost of travel and a 10% reduction in travel costs of buses and metro rail.

The comparative analysis was done for four income groups (low, lower-middle, upper-middle, and high) comprising males and females. For research, seven modes of transport were studied in four groups —private (car and two-wheeler), auto, non-motorised transport (NMT walking and cycling), and public transport (PT - bus and metro).

For instance, the modal share of cars among low-income men and women is already low — policymakers need to focus on developing other modes. It was observed that low and lower-middle income women preferred public transport over males. However, cars are preferred by females belonging to upper-middle and high-income groups.

The study further revealed women were likely to walk as compared to their male counterparts who preferred cycling, in the NMT category. Taking into consideration equal cost subsidies in public transport, females were more likely to use the metro over males. Two-wheelers were a preferred mode of choice in males across most income groups except the high-income group.

While several efforts are on to push citizens toward public transport as the sustainable choice, there hasn't been a major shift yet. The model developed by IISc researchers could be used to develop transport policies optimised across gender-income groups.

The research was conducted by Dr Ubaid Illahi, Dr Gayathri Harihar Subramanian, and Dr Ashish Verma of the IISc Sustainable Transportation Lab, funded by DULT.

Dr Verma told Bangalore Mirror that the purpose of the study was to understand the inclusivity of transport policies. "We wanted to look at how transport policies affect female users and how they can make a larger shift to public transport. For example, If the purpose of flyovers is to move private vehicles faster, certain income groups may not benefit from this transport intervention. More and more women are joining the workforce, and there is a need to increase mobility for them. Without taking women into account, you are ignoring 50 per cent of the transport users. Gendered evaluations can lead to increased ridership in public transport across both genders," Dr Verma explained.

Sea pollution in Mangaluru under NGT's scanner

Karnataka State Pollution Control Board asked to hold those violating norms accountable

Seawater pollution reported at Surathkal beach

The National Green Tribunal (NGT) has directed the Karnataka State Pollution Control Board (KSPCB) to hold those accountable for the discharge of untreated sewage and industrial effluents into the sea near Mangaluru's Surathkal beach in Dakshin Kannada district.

"The state PCB needs to fix accountability of the violators -- the industries concerned and the Municipal Corporation. We direct the member secretary, State PCB to now take further action in the matter and finalise the same within two months following due process of law," noted the tribunal.

The green court had taken up the matter after reports of discoloration of seawater in the region surfaced a few months ago. The reports also suggested that the pollution has adversely impacted the sea bass fish population in the area. The NGT then constituted a joint committee to look into the matter and submit a report after visiting the site.

As per the report submitted by the committee, the water quality was found polluted due to the discharge of untreated sewage into the sea by Mangaluru City Corporation, apart from industrial pollution along the coast. The report has specified that the discoloration of seawater noticed in May 2022 at the beach was due to algal bloom.

The green court took up the issue after reports of discoloration of seawater surfaced a few months ago

An analysis of water samples collected from the beach was also conducted and the results show the presence of a very high ratio of inorganic nitrogen and phosphorus which could be the cause of eutrophication leading to algal bloom.

As a precautionary measure, the tribunal has also ordered the board to monitor effluent discharges during the withdrawal of southwest monsoon and pre-monsoon periods.

The committee has also recommended that the Mangaluru City Corporation must take up underground drainage work and ensure the connection of missing links to sewage treatment plants.

"Mangaluru City Corporation has to take up the work of underground drainage and connection of missing links to terminal STP. This is to ensure that there is no possible entry of untreated sewage into the sea from non-point sources across the jurisdiction," said the green court in its order.

A dash of stress

Low to moderate stress is beneficial for health, says research but don't take too much of it

According to recent research from the Youth Development Institute at the University of Georgia, stress may not be a bad thing when it comes to brain functioning.

The study was published in Neuropsychologia.

The study found that low to moderate levels of stress improves working memory, the short-term information people use to complete everyday tasks like remembering someone's phone number or recalling directions on how to get to a specific location.

There is, however, a caveat, the researchers said. The findings are specific to low to moderate stress. Once your stress levels go above moderate levels and become constant, that stress becomes toxic.

"The bad outcomes of stress are pretty clear and not new," said Assaf Oshri, lead author of the study and an associate professor in the College of Family and Consumer Sciences.

Constant high levels of stress can actually change the structure of the brain. It leads to increases in white matter at the expense of gray matter, which is involved in muscle control, decision-making, self-control, emotional regulation and heart disease. Chronic stress can also make people more susceptible to a variety of illnesses ranging from nausea and migraine headaches to high blood pressure and heart disease.

"But there's less information about the effects of more limited stress," Oshri said. "Our findings show that low to moderate levels of perceived stress were associated with elevated working memory neural activation, resulting in better mental performance."

In previous research, Oshri and his colleagues demonstrated the low to moderate stress levels could help individuals build resilience and reduce their risk of developing mental health disorders, such as depression and antisocial behaviors. That study also showed that limited bouts of stress can help people learn how to cope in future stressful situations.

The present study builds upon that work, providing magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) that shows how low to moderate stress can make the parts of the brain that control working memory more effectively do their job.

Support networks, friends and family can help people cope with stress in healthy ways

The researchers analyzed MRI scans from the Human Connectome Project of more than 1,000 people from diverse racial and ethnic backgrounds. Funded by the National Institutes of Health, the Human Connectome Project aims to provide insight into how the human brain functions.

The results suggested that individuals who reported low to moderate stress levels had increased activity in the parts of the brain that involve working memory. Participants who said they experienced chronic high levels of stress showed a decline in those areas.

To assess perceived stress levels, participants answered questions about how frequently they experienced certain thoughts or feelings. For example, "in the last month, how often have you been upset because of something that happened unexpectedly?" and "in the last month, how often have you found that you could not cope with all the things that you had to do?" This scale has proven an effective measure in a variety of other international studies.

The researchers also examined participants' social networks using a variety of measures, including how individuals felt about their own ability to handle unexpected events, how satisfied they were that their lives matter and are meaningful and the availability of friend-based support in their social networks.

To analyze working memory, participants were presented with a series of four types of images of things like tools and individuals' faces and later asked to recall whether they were the same photos they were shown before. The researchers then analyzed MRIs of the participants' brains as they completed the tasks to assess neural activation in different parts of the brain.

Perhaps unsurprisingly, the participants who said they had more support from their families and friends appeared more able to cope with low to moderate stress levels in a healthy manner.

"You need to have the right resources to be strengthened by adversity and stress," Oshri said. "For some people, being exposed to adversity is a good thing. But for others, maybe not."

"It's possible that you can sustain more stress if you have a supportive community or family."

Cheers to a cuppa of black tea

A daily cup of tea could help you to enjoy better health late in life, however if you're not a tea drinker, there are other things you can add to your diet.

The key is flavonoids, which are naturally occurring substances found in many common foods and beverages such as black and green tea, apples, nuts, citrus fruit, berries and more.

They have long been known to have many health benefits -- however new Edith Cowan University (ECU) research shows they may be even better for us than previously thought.

The Heart Foundation supported a study of 881 elderly women (median age of 80), which found they were far less likely to have extensive build-up of abdominal aortic calcification (AAC) if they consumed a high level of flavonoids in their diet.

AAC is the calcification of the abdominal aorta -- the largest artery in the body which supplies oxygenated blood from the heart to the abdominal organs and lower limbs -- and is a predictor of cardiovascular risk such as heart attack and stroke.

It has also been found to be a reliable predictor for late-life dementia. ANI

Our findings show that low to moderate levels of perceived stress were associated with elevated working memory neural activation

The numbers in the grey squares refer to the sums of the digits that you must fill into the empty spaces directly below or to the right of the grey square containing the number. For instance, in the given example, the 3 boxes horizontally next to 15 must contain 3 digits that add up to 15, whereas for 9, it is the 2 boxes placed vertically under it that must add up to 9. No zeros are used here, only the digits 1 through 9.

Note: A digit cannot appear more than once in any particular digit combination. For instance, in the example, we cannot have the combination of 4+7+4 for 15.

Rules

» Connect adjacent dots with vertical or horizontal lines, creating a single loop (Fig A). » Crossovers or branches are not allowed (As shown by dotted lines in Fig B). » Numbers in the puzzle indicate the number of lines that should surround it, while empty cells may be surrounded by any number of lines. » You can't draw lines around zeros. » Each puzzle has just one unique solution.

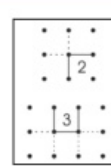

How to begin:

Example (Fig A) - Begin with the zero next to 3. Since no lines can be drawn around zero, mark crosses around it, as shown. Now there is a cross in one space around 3. So we know the three lines of 3 can only be drawn in the remaining three spaces. Next, these lines can only be extended in one direction each. Continue, using the same logic.

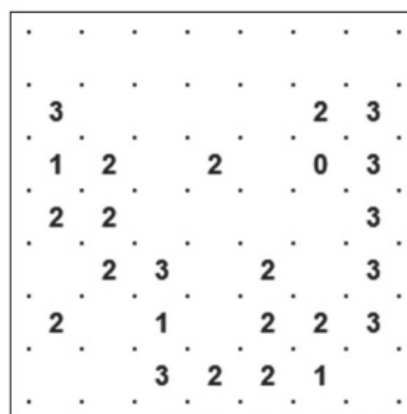

Hints: Keep eliminating possibilities by marking crosses in spaces between dots where a line isn't possible, i.e., if you have already completed required lines or where a line extension may create a branch or cause a dead-end (Fig B)

(Fig B) Not Allowed

Komal, Navarasa Nayaka Jaggesh's brother, makes a comeback with Kalaya Namaha after a gap of three years. Please note that this is not the same as Kalaya Tasmai Namaha that was released more than a decade ago.

Komal plays the lead role in Kalaya Namaha and its shooting is being held in and around Bengaluru. "I do not know if others believe in astrology but I do. I happened to meet one astrologer three years ago. He predicted that I had to be cautious as my fate is not good for three years. So, I waited for three years to act in the next movie. I have been worshipping our village god Kalabhairava," said Komal.

He said his wife Ansuya is bankrolling the movie while Mathivanan is handling the megaphone. Jaggesh too said he believes in astrology. "I also advised my brother Komal not to act till 2022. Now the time is very good for Komal to act. My son Yathiraj is also acting in this movie. I am confident this movie will become a success at the box office," said Jaggesh. Asiya Firdose is paired opposite Komal.

A kiss is just a kiss

Shriya Saran and hubby Andrei Koscheev are not ones to shy away from indulging in some PDA on and off social media. At the recent 'Drishyam 2' screening, the couple puckered up for the paparazzi as they arrived on the red carpet.

However, their photos left some social media users rather uncomfortable. "Why do they have to kiss in public every time?" read a comment.

During an interaction with a portal, Shriya was asked about dealing with the trolling over the kiss. The actress told News18 that her husband 'thinks that it's normal to kiss me during my special moment and I think it's beautiful.' She added that Andrew doesn't understand why they would be trolled for 'something so natural.'
